In order for your award to be packaged, you will need to complete the below actions:

Admissions Requirements

The financial aid staff at your college will explain exactly how and when your aid will be paid out. They will also tell you whether you need to fill out any more paperwork or meet other requirements. For instance, if you're receiving a federal student loan for the first time, you should expect to be required to sign a promissory note and go through entrance counseling. Be sure to keep in touch with your school's financial aid office so that you understand the whole process of receiving your aid.
